Run-Around.
The English language is quite rich in colloquial expressions. Some of these expressions, in fact, would seem to have no possible substitutes. Take, for example, the expression, "the run-around." Admittedly, it is far from being a profound expression. It is not poetic; it is not professorial. Moreover, it is not even included in dictionaries. Further still, "the run-around" may justly be said to smack a little of the vocabulary of the mob. It is vulgar and Broadwayish.

But, boy! it's expressive and descriptive. We know. Because that's what we've been getting for the past few Fridays. From whom? From our friend the editor in charge of columns, of course. For several Fridays we've been ready to provide a column as per arrangement at the outset of the current journalistic season. But something always seemed to crop up and make the editor say: "Not this week" or words to that effect.

That's what we mean by saying that we've been getting the "run-around" and that's why we think it's such a wonderful expression. However, we're here this Friday and we hope every Friday from now on.

Dunkirk Sidelight

It is by now almost trite to say that war is a ghastly thing. But even it has its lighter side. Take this little gem from the Saskatchewan Sheaf:

During the evacuation from Dunkirk the Navy was busy on rescue work, and men were dragged from the water by the hair, or anything that came handy. One sailor made a grab at a bald-headed man, and after two vain attempts to pull him aboard, shouted:

"Hey, go down again and come up right; this is no time for fooling."

Fire in Attraction

Recently during a dance at the University of Toronto—the annual All-University Fall Dance—a deliberate fire proved to be one of the attractions of the evening. In order that a war contribution might be made to the Dominion Government, part of the price of each ticket was diverted to the purchase of war savings stamps. One thousand tickets were sold, which allowed for the purchase of $250 worth of stamps.

In a simple ceremony these war savings stamps were burned up, the president of the University, Dr. H. J. Cody, touching off the flame with a kerosene-soaked copy of the Varsity undergraduate newspaper.

Numerous Items

Despite the above little heading, this is a single item about numerous items.

The Syracuse Daily Orange reports that there is a junior on the campus who boasts that his wallet contains more numbers than anyone else's. Items in his wallet that are numerical include: a sheriff's card, operator's licence, car registration, fishing licence, Y.M.C.A. card, social security credentials, Summer Players' guild membership, bookstore account, tuition receipt, Dock theatre pass, press pass, gun permit, key ring, gym locker identification, gym group number, and draft registration.

Every one of this gentleman's cards and papers has a number, except the last (draft registration), says the Orange, adding that it too would have one in a short time. By now, since the draft lottery in Washington, it probably has.

OBSERVANCE OF SCHEDULE HIGH

90% of Seniors Respond to Page 4 Lists

Efficient Portrait Work to Allow More Time for Contest

Latest reports from the photographers are to the effect that about 90 per cent. of those seniors whose names appear daily on page four are following instructions and appearing on time to have their pictures taken for the forthcoming Annual.

It had been expected that there would be some difficulty in accommodating everyone between 4.30 and 6 o'clock each afternoon but very few students have required special appointments, it was stated last night.

Training Confusion Avoided
There is a reason for the observance of the schedule by so many seniors, the Annual Board stated, it was that the classes were being split into groups, and afterwards given them which do not conflict with military training. So far, the Engineers have been given Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, a group of twenty for each day, while Medical students in their fourth year, since clinical men do not have training, offered no difficulty in any case, it was said, and were allotted the remaining days.

Continued strict observance of the schedule printed on page four was said to be of great necessity in order that this part of the Annual's work may be finished early enough to permit the increased time needed for the campus life section which it was stated would be much larger than usual, and which would be more representative of university life, since the campus life photography contest is being highly organized for the first time in many years, and more snapshot entries are being anticipated.

A few students, it was reported, were not sure whether or not they were required to supply their own gowns for the photographs. They were told, however, that these are all ready for use at the photographers at 1330 Sherbrooke Street West, and the only thing that they themselves need supply is the $2.50 to be given to the photographer at time of sitting.

All students in Medical Category "C" will report to Dr. Lamb's office in the Gymnasium Building at the same hour as their Company Parade.

MAC CIRCLE TO HEAR RABBI LEVI SUNDAY

The second in a series of meetings of the Maccabean Circle will be held this Sunday afternoon in the Union Grill at 4.30 p.m. The speaker will be Rabbi S. Gershon Levi, the Educational Director of the Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue, who will present an address entitled "As a Driven Leaf," based on the novel of the same name by Milton Steinberg.

The meeting will follow the return of the men from the church parade of the McGill Reserve Training Battalion. It has been planned to have additional speakers at meetings to follow. During the business part of the session a series of novel meetings will be discussed. Refreshments will be served at the end of the meeting.

MACLENNAN HOLDS WAR IS INEVITABLE

Church Should Support State If Government Is Legally Constituted

"War is a means of settling disputes between nations. Between individuals, disputes may be settled before judges. But, nations must both respect the decisions of an international court in order that its decisions may be enforced," stated Professor R. D. MacLennan at the meeting of the Presbyterian College Literary and Philosophical Society, last night.

"Our idea of progress is not a correct conception, at least, not entirely correct. For war does not mean death to Christianity. Many young Christians feel it wrong to take up arms in order to destroy life, because it is at variance with their belief in the Christian doctrine, and yet things being as they are, they may participate in war with many grave doubts as to the ethics of their action. Others feel that they fight in order to defend the same Christian Gospels.

State To Decide.
The church can not deny the right of the state to declare war, if in the councils of state, the statesmen after mature consideration decide war is the only way to settle the problem.

Christian pacifism is based upon a false understanding of the relation between the state and the church. As an historical fact pacifists fail to recognize the limits of authority of the church and its recognition in a state. Final responsibility lies with the state not with the church, and the soldier participates in war as a member of the state, not as a Christian. The church must support the government if it feels that the government is the legally constituted body, and represents the will of the people.

So long as such motives as greed, lust for power are in men's minds, war remains. There is nothing in the New Testament to lead us to believe in a warless world. The ends of war are not degrading but may be. In Great Britain there is more heroism, more superior virtue shown during war than at any other time.

Regular practice in the Union Grill room this afternoon at five o'clock sharp. This is an important practice, as new music will be tried. A good attendance is essential.

CLUB TO HEAR LOCAL EDITORS

Jack Greenwood and Katharine Aikins as Guest Speakers

'Opportunities in College Journalism' to Be Discussed by Literary Club

Two of the prominent figures in campus journalism, Jack Greenwood, Editor-in-Chief of the "Daily," and Katharine Aikins, Editor of the "Forge," are to express their views on the subject of "Opportunities in College Journalism" at the opening meeting of the season of the Literary Club.

This initial session, scheduled for next Tuesday evening, November 12, at 8 o'clock, will take place in the R.V.C. common room. After the talk an open discussion of the subject is to take place, led by the guest speakers, and refreshments will be served.

A member of the executive stated to the Daily last night that those in charge have gone to considerable trouble to arrange the programme. "It is generally felt," she said, "that this subject is of vital importance to everyone on the campus."

She added that the Executive of the Literary Club hope that a representative part of the student body will show its appreciation by attending in large numbers.

Psychological Society Discuss Future Plans

The Psychological Society held its meeting yesterday at Room 74 in the Arts Building to elect an executive and to discuss plans for the coming season.

'Montreal Standard' to Publish Novel by Former 'Daily' Editor

By E. D. J.
"Read all about them, Peruse the characters of the most prominent people of McGill. Learn what they think about; talk about; love about!" All these facts are obtainable in Gerald Clark's novel about McGill University which is to appear in tomorrow's edition of the Montreal Standard.

Clark, who is a former Editor-in-Chief of the McGill Daily, has been a feature writer with the Standard since his graduation in 1939. He has, however, never lost his interest in his Alma Mater, and has from time to time written feature stories about different phases of life at the university.

Among Clark's ambitions at graduation was to write a novel. Once he had actually got himself in hand enough to sit down at a typewriter, he found his thoughts wandering toward McGill. Thus he set the scene of his first novel at McGill, and for his characters he used the prominent campus personalities of his time.

And the beauty of the story is that his time is not too remote from our time, so that we too can appreciate the char-

Announcement by Principal Follows Board of Governors' Meeting

Announcement was made last night by Principal F. Cyril James of the appointment by the Board of Governors of three McGill professors as City Councillors to represent the University on the new Montreal City Council when it holds its inaugural meeting next month.

John P. Humphrey, B.Com., B.A., B.C.L. (McGill), associate professor of law and secretary to the Faculty of Law; Dean Jonathan C. Meakins, M.D., C.M. (McGill), M.D. (Sydney), LL.D. (Edinburgh), associate Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, professor of medicine, chairman of the department of medicine and director of the university medical clinic, and Percy E. Nobbs, M.A. (Edinburgh), prominent local architect and formerly professor of design in the School of Architecture, are McGill's three nominees. An-

TEN TO VIE IN BOVEY FINALS

Prof. R. George and Rev. T. Lamont Reserve Judgment

Winner of Contest to Be Presented With Bovey Shield

Ten entrants in yesterday's Bovey Shield competition have been asked by the judges to speak in a final contest next week. The students chosen were L. Coleman, M. Currie, J. MacFarlane, T. Bishop, S. Bross, L. Manolson, W. Noble, K. Paltiel, Z. Pomerantz and W. Solkin. The winner in this final debate will have his name inscribed on the shield donated by Col. Bovey for impromptu public speaking among newcomers to the University, and will also receive an individual trophy.

Te decision of the judges, Professor R. George and Rev. T. Lamont, to reserve judgment until a final contest could be held, was due to the absence of the third judge, Professor J. Humphrey. They felt that, as the general standard of the speakers was so high, it would be unfair to decide on a winner without having all the judges present. The ten finalists will discuss a new topic, which will be announced in the Daily on the morning of the contest. Alex Stalker, who is in charge of the competition, has asked that these students leave a list of their free hours next week for him in Bill Gentlemen's office, so the time for the debates may be arranged.

INSTITUTE PLANS STUDENT PROGRAM

Engineering Institute of Canada to Hold Student Night

The Montreal Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, in co-operation with the Junior Section of the Montreal Branch, have organized a special Student Night, to be held on Thursday, November 21st, 1940. The program will include several diverse items: a technical motion picture will be shown, and four papers on pertinent subjects will be read. Two of the papers are to be given by students of l'Ecole Polytechnique of Montreal and two by students of McGill University. They have been selected by Professors R. de L. French, M.E.I.C., and Mr. Jacques Hurtubise, S.E.I.C., Secretary of the Junior Section of the Montreal Branch.

Prizes of fifteen dollars and ten dollars will be awarded by the Montreal Branch for the two best papers delivered. In addition, the Institute will give all four contestants student memberships in the Institute for one year and one year's subscription to the Engineering Journal.

Refreshments will be served after the meeting. A cordial invitation to attend is extended to all students at McGill.

LECTURES CANCELLED.
Next Monday, the 11th of November, is Remembrance Day and as such is a Dominion holiday. All lectures will be cancelled on that day and no Daily will be published.

DAILY REPORTERS.
All reporters for Monday are reminded that they must come down to the Daily office and check off their assignments tomorrow at 1 p.m. Sunday night's staff is expected to turn out on Monday night unless it is impossible.

PARADE DETAILS

STARTING POINT — Parade begins at Armoury at 1.45 E.D.T. on Sunday afternoon.
ROUTE — With M.R.T.B. in lead Parade moves off at 2 p.m. west on Pine avenue, south on University, west on Sherbrooke, south down Mountain to Dorchester, east to Phillips Square, and north to St. Catherine street where Parade divides.

CHURCHES — At 3 p.m. the C.O.T.C. goes to Christ Church Cathedral and the M.R.T.B. to St. James United for 45 minute service.
SALUTE — Return route with Salute in front of the Art Gallery on Sherbrooke street, at 4.45 p.m. by Brig-General E. de B. Panet. C.O.T.C. marches north on Union to Sherbrooke, M.R.T.B. west on Sherbrooke and falls in behind C.O.T.C. at Union. Both parade west along Sherbrooke to Cole des Neiges, then east on Pine to Dismissal points.

CHANGE OF ORDERS — In case orders regarding dress, etc., should be changed, announcement will be made on the radio over station CFCF at 12 noon E.D.T., Sunday.

MEETING HELD BY PRESIDENTS

Women's Union Convenes to Discuss This Year's Schedule

Featured Events Include Sadie Hawkins Week, Buffet Supper, War-Savings Stamp Campaign

R.V.C. Class presidents and presidents of the clubs and societies supported by the Women's Union gathered last Tuesday evening in the Women's Union office to discuss plans for this year's Buffet Supper, Sadie Hawkins Week and a campaign for selling war savings stamps.

It was decided that on November 26th, the annual Buffet Supper will take place in the R.V.C. Assembly Hall. Frances Cox, chairman of last year's Senior Dinner will act as Mistress of Ceremonies and each club is contributing to the entertainment.

It was also announced at the Round Table Conference that Sadie Hawkins week will be held from Friday, January 24 till the following Friday when the week will be climaxed by the Spinsters' Spree.

The "smile-a-dime" system now in effect at U.B.C. was named as a successful method for a campus-wide campaign for selling war-savings stamps. Another suggestion, offered as being especially practical for co-eds shopping in Montreal, was that of using change-pennies to buy stamps which would be sold at the R.V.C. porter's office. In place of the usual type of prizes offered, the Debating Society and Societe Francaise this year will give stamps.

Mrs. Phyllis Duchastel, Treasurer of the Women's Union, announced that her office hours will be from 12 noon to 2 p.m. on Tuesday and from 9 to 12 on Friday mornings. Her home telephone number is AT 8737.

Around the Campus

Tomorrow: I.V.C.F. hold Fireside Meeting at 134 Ballantyne avenue, Montreal West at 8.15 p.m.

Sunday: Assembly for Church Parade at 1.45 p.m. Parade will begin at 2.00 p.m. . . . Rabbi Gershon Levi will speak at Maccabean Circle in the Union Grill Room in the afternoon.

The Future: S.C.M. to honour Miss Margaret Kinney at supper party at 6.00 p.m. in Strathcona Hall. . . . Jack Greenwood and Katharine Aikins, the editor of the Forge, will express views on "Opportunities in College Journalism" at R.V.C. Common Room at 8.00 p.m. Tuesday, November 12th. . . . Painting Classes for would-be artists begin on Tuesday at 8.00 p.m. in Strathcona Hall. . . . Ten finalists in Bovey Shield to speak sometime next week. . . . Student Night at Montreal Engineering Institute to be held November 21st. . . . Finally, DON'T forget to have your picture taken for the Annual.

City Councillors

Councillors of the City of Montreal under the new organization face a difficult task. On their shoulders lies the responsibility of guiding the affairs and handling the administration of the metropolis of Canada. Thirteen public bodies in the city have been given the authority to select three representatives each to the Montreal City Council which comes into being next month. The thirty-nine men so elected will undoubtedly be among the most able of the new civic administrators.

An announcement, therefore, of vital interest to students was made by the Principal yesterday. It told of the appointment by the Governors of the three Councillors from McGill University. John P. Humphrey, B. Com., B.A., B.C.L., Associate Professor of Law and Secretary to the Faculty of Law; Jonathan C. Meakins, M.D., C.M., L.L.D., Associate Dean and Professor of Medicine in the Faculty of Medicine; and Percy E. Nobbs, M.A., former Professor of Design in the School of Architecture are the three appointees.

All three are outstanding members of the McGill community and their presence on the City Council will undoubtedly add to the capabilities of that body. The students eagerly look forward to the first meeting of the Council so as to follow the activities of McGill's representatives on it.

How About It Girls?

This Sunday the McGill C.O.T.C. and Reserve Training Battalion will hold their first church parade of the year. Over two thousand strong they will attend services at Christ Church Cathedral and at St. James' United Church, proceeding afterwards in parade over a definite route past the saluting base to the campus and stadium where they will be dismissed.

We think it would be a fine idea if the coeds turned out to that parade too. Now we are not saying "You turn out or else..." and this isn't propaganda, but it would make all the boys in the C.O.T.C. and in the M.R.T.B. feel very proud and excited about their first church parade if you lined the streets of the route.

Because this editorial is appearing in to-day's Daily, they know that they may expect to see the coeds—their classmates and lab. partners—smiling and cheering as they march by.

Inasmuch as you, the women of McGill University, are even now playing a great part in the war effort, we feel that by encouraging the men in their first church parade, you can be rendering an equally valuable service.

So, coeds—line the route and cheer for the boys of the McGill Contingent on Sunday.

A McGill Man

McGill is being paid a signal honour today in that one of the McGill men at Ottawa, Brooke Claxton, K.C., M.P., Associate Professor of Law, will move the Address from the Throne. Opening the debate of the Throne Speech which was read by the Governor-General yesterday, Mr. Claxton will bring to McGill an honour which she, as well as he richly deserves. Well done Mr. Claxton, congratulations!

WIDE-EYED IN GOTHAM

By Reuven Frank

(A C.U.P. Feature)

Through the Stomach

NEW YORK: The man of modest means must mortgage his immortal soul to afford a good meal in this town, yet people here are the eatiest there are. From sunrise to sunset they eat, or they drink, or they contemplate their next masticatory session. It would surprise me not in the least to learn that natural selection has bred a New Yorker with a stomach that is deep, wide and galvanized like a garbage can.

There are restaurants of every price range; there are several chains of cafeterias each with several hundred branches; and there are several hundred independent cafeterias; there are chains of stand-up-and-guzzle-it stands; there are White Tower "hamburger joints"; there are low-priced "food shops" which serve no bread but crumpets which are known as English muffins; there are innumerable Chinese restaurants specializing in chow mein, chop suey and Balantine's Beef; there are stands which vend exotic drinks extracted from tropical fruits; there are kosher delicatessens and restaurateurs adjuncts to grocery stores and bakeries; and, surprisingly enough, there are still people who eat at home.

Chow Factory

New York's millions are all gourmands, but there is not a gourmet in the lot. Food is high, and the pulp is but slightly lower, but the restaurant which serves the food is giving way to the cafeteria where mass production methods have been applied to semi-nourishing pulp, and there is no waitress to tip. These bakelite-lined emporia can be found three, four and five in a row, and all of them busy enough to demand a ten-cent minimum.

And then, of course, there is the Automat. You present a dollar at the wicket and the gum-chewing female behind the grill shoves a crimson-tipped paw into a mess of nickels. She regards them not, she counts them not, but when she strews them in front of you like so much sand, there are invariably twenty. These are constantly and continually fed into slots and the resultant turn of the crank disgorges a piece of pie, a slice of bread, a glass of milk, a cup of coffee (with just so much cream), a side-order of vegetables... anything you desire.

The Automat is cool, spotless and completely free of smoke. It seems that Messrs. Horn and Hardart, founders of the chain, whose names are still emblazoned above the world "Automat" were Dutchmen. Dutchmen, besides being scrupulously clean, would never smoke in the house. This accounts for the evolution of those long Dutch pipes which were used to sit in the house and smoke out the window. Therefore, the will of Mr. Horn (or was it Mr. Hardart who died last?) stipulated that no one shall smoke in the Automat from then until the end of time.

So far, no one has.

New Wrinkles in Hot-dog Marketing

Food is inordinately expensive, but the people do not eat food. They subsist on cafeteria fibre (clean but tasteless) carbonated belly-wash and hot dogs which are delightfully reminiscent of The Jungle by Upton Sinclair. There are several places where the hot dog is served for five cents, but a mug of root beer is thrown in free. The root beer isn't bad, tasting merely like soap, but the hot dog is obviously old, and well-preserved, for you can still taste the formaldehyde.

There is a new wrinkle in hot doggerly around Times Square. The aforementioned meat (sic) is immersed in a batter and subjected to very high temperature. The batter being allegedly egg and stuff tries to live up to the claims made for it, and puff and rise and become a roll enveloping the hot dog. It is a fascinating operation and thousands of people stand outside the window to watch it. When we went inside, we were greeted with the shout, "One frank coming up!" making us feel self-conscious at being thus heralded.

CHESS

In our last article we discussed a variation of the Ruy Lopez opening in which Black manages to obtain an even game. The Ruy Lopez is perhaps the most difficult opening to defend against, and at one time it was claimed that this opening came closest to conferring a distinct advantage with the move. But it is not necessary for Black to reply to White's opening P-K4 with P-K4; there are several alternative at his disposal. To 1. P-K4, the may equally well answer 1... P-QB4, the Sicilian Defence; 1... P-KB3, Alekhine's Defence; 1... P-Q4, Centre Counter Game; 1... P-KN3 or P-QN3, the Fianchetto Defences; 1... N-QB3, the Nimzovitch Defence; or 1... P-K3, the French Defence.

The French Defence will be considered now, and subsequent analyses will be devoted to the various merits or drawbacks of each of the others. At this point we advise those readers who are interested to save these articles so that they may refer to them from time to time as needed.

The French Defence

The type of game resulting from 1... P-K3 is called a close defence. It is solid and resists very strongly any premature attacks. At the same time, however, it will not suit those people who are anxious to obtain the initiative early in the game.

White

1. P-K4
2. P-Q4
3. N-QB3

Black

- P-K3
- P-Q4
- N-KB3

White does not exchange pawns, since it is always better to maintain the centre as long as possible, and not yield it unnecessarily.

4. QB-N5

The McCutcheon Variation.

5. P-K5

If 6. P x N, then... P x B, 7. P x P R-N sq. recapturing the pawn with at least an even game.

6. B-Q2

7. P x N

White is doubling his pawns. If 7. B x N, then... N-K5, and Black has gained a move if White plays 8. B-Q2.

8. Q-N4

9. B-Q3

10. K x N

We are now entering the middle-game and Black has an even position.

MICHIGAN MURMURS

By W. J. R.

Ann Arbor, November 5. — What with one thing and another, this has been a bad week for us. Our dog, which we had for two years, got hold of some poison which someone left 'carelessly' on his front lawn and died in convulsions. We miss his warm little body next to us at night and all the things he used to do. In times like these the love of a dog is a salutary thing and we mention it not as a sentimental aside. Anything which includes in it perfect trust and love is precious to all of us now.

In spite of that we have had time to notice the elaborate and impressive national draft lottery in Washington. Our serial number with the local Ann Arbor Board was 4058 and this was determined by the shuffle method. In the Washington draw we came out in pill number 8041. Apparently there will be no need to actually call men for quite some time as voluntary registration for one year of training is expected to fill the quota. We are a non-declarant alien and fall into class IVc, which is just one category above the physically undesirable.

In spite of anything we would have had to notice the rising pitch of the political campaign. Campaign oratory flooded the air night and day. In between programs transcribed but of plugging one party or the other are run off. After each an announcement was made saying that we have just listened to a paid political broadcast. Even the advertising on the regular radio shows showed the influence. We heard a commercial on the Libby Owens Ford Glass program to the effect that theirs was the glass to use in repairing window panes broken in the election excitement. And so it goes. Each side incontestably right.

A matter that comes up often, and has come up more often recently, is the question of England winning the war. Almost always after we meet someone new, and after they asked out we are a Canadian, and they have asked a few preliminary questions, they lean towards us confidentially and say, do you really believe England can win the war?

Now this happens to us about once a week and we would be avoiding the issue as a reporter if we neglected to speak of it. In the first place a little background may be necessary. The Middle West is the most militantly isolationist part of the country. In spite of the great mass of war orders that come to this part of the country, the interest and awareness of and in the danger of the war seems to vary inversely as the distance from the coast. So when we are asked if we really believe that England can win the war we reply that nothing is more certain. Then of course, our questioner says, and just how is it to be accomplished. We point out that England is rapidly approaching parity in the air and will eventually go ahead. When that comes to pass, bombing Germany, together with the blockade will do the trick, plus the restiveness of the conquered European peoples. If this does not produce a collapse, it would be a relatively simple matter for the navy to effect a landing on the long and sparsely guarded French coast. Invariably our questioner doesn't think it can be done, that our facts, and what he calls our hopes are all wishful thinking. Of course this gloomy class has no solution to offer—just says it can't be done. We don't know what to say either except to tell them that we're sure they're wrong and that they had better not be defeatists because that is the best way to guarantee defeat.

Last Saturday we went to a small college football game while Michigan was idle. Michigan Normal College played Alma College at Ypsilanti. It was Homecoming Day at Ypsilanti and Alma was undefeated and Ypsi had not scored a point all season. Normal won 24-7 and there were several excellent brawls on the field. I laughingly refer to it as a small college game because the stadium which seats 15,000 people was completely packed and the massed masculine and feminine bands of the two schools turned it into quite a spectacle under a hot blue sky. It's amazing and wonderful to see how seriously this country takes its football; and such things may be its salvation. Americans love these things too much to ever give them up in favor of regimentation.

This is being written on election day, which is grey and cold in Ann Arbor; and that will probably hold the vote down. We are invited to a traditional Election Night party at which cards are played and punch and cookies served and everyone sits up until the result is determined. If anyone has the current issue of "Life" and cares to look at the political map, he may in it, note the following: in the southeast corner of Michigan is a small white square, which means that the county thus designated has been republican ever since 1920. This is Washtenaw County, and Ann Arbor is the county seat. Which just goes to prove what we told you before. But more of that anon.

THE RAKE'S PROGRESS

More of the Fabulous Exploits of the Owl

By Mulligan

Any resident, passing through the quadrangle up to Douglas Hall, would have been amazed to behold a light burning in the Owl's study-bedroom at nine o'clock on Saturday night; and would have been still more amazed to see a huge pair of Romeo slippers sticking out the window, belokening the presence of the great wag himself. The light might have been left burning in his room through forgetfulness; but the Owl at home on his favorite night-out (don't worry, the other six aren't neglected very much), seemed incredible. And if you told anybody you had seen the Owl studying, you would be called a prevaricator of the deepest dye, and classed on a par with Ananias. But the horrible fact remained: The Owl was studying!

The Owl dropped his copy of "Ten Thousand Ways to Win at Poker," and reached for another text-book, "How to Beat the Pin-Ball System." A cool night mist curled lazily out of the darkness into the mellow warmth of the room; and the brisk air sweeping down from the mountain made the Owl feel wondrous wise. The quadrangle was deserted, and silence reigned omnipotent—except where, through one window, many moving figures could be seen, and the banging of sledgehammers be heard. Above the din rose the harsh voice of Dr. —, damning to eternal fire, brimstone, and perdition the scoundrel who had filled his bath-tub, sink, and other convenience with concrete. The Owl grinned so hard his horn-rims nearly fell off. "Guess I'd better take the dear doctor in hand," he murmured, "that vocabulary of his is positively feeble!"

But such startling news as the Owl at home could not be kept secret very long from the flapping ears of our student body. The word flew like wild-fire from the Ritz Bar to the Terminal Club; the Old Mill to the Peel, the Carleton Club to that little joint down on St. Antoine street where a huge Negro attendant dusts off your coat crooning little love-lyrics and there are cushions inviting you under every table. Everywhere heads were shaken incredulously; and three specialists from the Verdun Protestant Hospital popped in to "see if the Owl was feeling all right." After a brief interview the specialists tore back to Verdun to see if they were all right!

We arrived just in time to catch the Owl violating the chastity of a bottle of 1588 best Armada Scuttle he had stolen from the ancestral wine-cellar, while visiting there once on a trip through England. After sundry gulps, the mighty wit laid aside the empty sober six flagons and hauled forth his howdah—something in the manner of Dr. Johnson getting ready a cup of tea, preparatory to verbally slaughtering Boswell and Scotland; while I hauled forth my wax tablets and sharpened my stylus, preparatory to preserving the forthcoming wisdom for the beguilement of posterity.

The scoop is for the Editor of the Daily (poor lad). The truthfulness of the report is indubitable—you'll see it's all a d—d lie right away!"

The shriek of sirens outside rang a familiar tune to the ears of the Owl, as he sat, looking very beautiful, at the back of the room listening to the opening strains of the Economy Club. The Owl had already asked twenty-three stupid questions; and the president of the club was contemplating either kicking him out (which would have taken the rest of the evening), or asking him to get up and give an impromptu speech on Economics (which the Owl would have done readily enough, though he has not the slightest inkling of its fundamentals, as his bankbook and his thousands of creditors can testify). Fortunately, the Owl had meanwhile been enticed by a group of

HOCKEY TEAMS START SEASON NEXT TUESDAY

Intercompany Program to Be Drawn Up Shortly

MCDONALD TOP COACH

Forum Engaged for One
Hour Three Nights
Weekly

It was officially announced last night that arrangements had been made with the Forum providing three hours of ice a week for the McGill Intercompany Hockey League. The periods decided on will be Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday from 12:30 to 1:30. The first periods will be for practice and "A" Company will start the ball rolling this coming Tuesday.

The League will probably be broken up into two parts so that no one company team will sink too low in the standing and at the end of the season a play-off between the two winning group teams will decide which one gets top honours. As with other sports, points will be given according to the merits of the teams and these will go into the company totals. Besides the various Companies, the Independents and Macdonald College will enter teams.

Bill MacDonald has been appointed Chief Honorary Coach and will shortly announce who his assistants will be; the assistants will be chosen from the men from last year's senior hockey squad who have volunteered their services. Sweaters, stockings, and goalers' equipment will be provided and hockey sticks will be available from the Athletic Office at cost price.

SKI CLUB WILL OPEN SHORTLY

Initial Meeting to Take Place
About the Middle of November

Business Will Be Followed by Ski Pictures and Dancing to a Nickelodian

Approaching the middle of November the Executive of the McGill Outing Club awakes again from its annual summer sleep. Its first activities concern the first meeting probably to be held on the 20th of November, when, apart from the usual business, movies and a nickelodian will provide the customary entertainment. All ski fans (ski fans are co-eds as well and if we might say so they are often an inspiration to many a man to call himself a "ski fan") are cordially invited to be present to listen and enjoy themselves.

We do not know yet the exact plans of the M.O.C. because the club is still hidden behind a cloud of mystery, but nevertheless our reporters have been trying to lift the secret and some facts have come to light: surprise ski meets, series of Inter-Company competitions (probably half a dozen) in Slalom, Cross Country, Downhill and Jumping, and week-end tours; but if you would like to know all about it come to the initial meeting—and oh boy, will it ever be a good meeting, just remember that of last year and it will give you a faint idea of the things to come.

This year there will be no zone competitions an account of the war and, therefore, all competitions will be purely club activities. As McGill statutes do not allow its students to start competitive for another club, McGill students will be able to make larger use of the M.O.C. which will, according to the circumstances, increase its activities and provide for ample possibilities to satisfy the wants of all the members with their various interest.

The most important thing, however, to make the efforts of the M.O.C. a success, is the co-operation of every skier at McGill, and the Executive is convinced of their assistance.

The requirements to qualify you as a member to this club are a wish to ski and any pair of blades. If you have such do not hesitate to be present at the meeting and if you have not we will still be glad to see you.

Navy Attempts to Seize Lead Today Against Army

Army Out for First
Win Under Kerr's
Direction

Although they are at present in a first place tie with the Air Force, the Navy football club will attempt to avail itself of a golden opportunity to seize undisputed possession of the lead in the Inter-Company Football League this afternoon when Buster Fletcher's Gobs meet the twice vanquished Army at Molson's Stadium.

The question of whether or not Doug Kerr has been able to give the Army the needed shot in the arm in the short time that he has managed them will be answered at the same time. If the Army team can come through for Kerr, the Air Force will back into the lead. If the Army squad intends to do anything in the way of offering opposition to the on-rushing seamen they will have to tighten their sagging defences considerably. The scores of the games that the Army has lost, 14 to 6 to the Air Force, and 18 to 1 to the Navy, indicate the gaping holes that exist. The tendency of the Army men to execute perfectly timed miscues deep in their own territory has led to more than one touchdown for their opposition. A mixing of signals in the backfield or a slightly off-centred snap has proven very costly at times. If Doug Kerr can polish their attack and lend a little more sureness to the ball-handling an interesting game should develop.

ARMY CAN TIE.
A glance at the statistics reveals the fact that if the Army should lose this afternoon they will be mathematically eliminated from winning the Title although they might manage to secure a tie. This fact may prove an added incentive to the Army. The list of players follows:

Army: Cupe, Grant, Oumet, Smith, Stronach, Farlinger, Wyber, Wyber, Nussbaum, Cleary, MacPherson, Henry, McGibbon, Smybert, Papavitch, Norrish, Foster.

Navy: McGibbon, Read, Stronach, Byington, Robinson, Simpson, Russell, Jordan, Madill, Gibson, Patch, Hall, Bailey, Barclay, Black, Kobernick, Shuger, Smibert, Armstrong, Norrish, Landry, Thompson.

SQUASH.
There will be a squash exhibition in the gymnasium tonight at eight p.m. and all those interested are invited to turn out. The demonstration will be provided by McGill Coach Ted Greene and the Atwater coach Harry Cater.

Tonight at 8 p.m. there will also be a squash contest between McGill and the Atwater Club. Two singles and one doubles court will be reserved for the tournament. The first six on the McGill ladder who will compete are Walt Eppley, Peter Landry, Bill Arbuckle, Jack Whitelaw, Ken Campbell, Gault Finley.

calling all co-eds
by winifred

This afternoon from 4-6 p.m. the R.V.C. Lower gymnasium will be the scene of the first meeting of the R.V.C. Fencing Club. Much to everyone's delight Maitre Leuchewr will once more take over the helm and give the co-eds some more of that excellent instruction which proved so valuable last year.

A bit of news that should prove good news for all those who intend taking up the noble art of Fencing is the fact that this year the club will pay for the foils, thus cutting down the expenses of the co-eds by the sum of $2.50. Another change in the ruling of the club is that the co-eds will be permitted to use the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium for two hours a week.

Unfortunately due to the large number of new members, approximately 45, two hours will not be sufficient time to give each co-ed a lesson a week. However, it is hoped that some arrangements may be reached whereby two more hours may be obtained, and in this way enable the co-eds to do more fencing during the season.

This first gathering will start promptly at 4:00 p.m. in order that Miss Margo Van Reet may introduce Maitre Leuchewr who will then address the co-eds on the finer points of the noble art. Co-eds attending are urged to wear either short skirts or their shorts in order that their knee positions may be observed and corrected if necessary. All the equipment that will be necessary will be a glove preferably not too tight.

Tuesday is still the day allotted for the co-ed squash practice and the hours are from 2-4 p.m. Much enthusiasm has been shown and under the able direction of Mr. Ted Greene the co-eds are learning to play by leaps and bounds.

There is still a good deal of room left in the club for those who are interested in learning how to play this vigorous game. Anyone who would like to appear at this Tuesday's session is advised to get in touch with Betty Brodie, the Squash Manager.

This afternoon there will be a Squash meeting without instruction and any co-eds attending today are informed that they may secure rackets by going to the Athletic Office in the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium and Armory, and asking the Secretary for them.

There was an excellent turnout for the basketball practice that was held on Wednesday, and the players showed excellent promise for the coming basketball season. The next practice will be held on Wednesday, November 13, from 5-6 in the Montreal High School gymnasium, while on November 17th the gathering will be held in the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium.

English Rugby Team to Play Westmount Rivals on Saturday

Each Team Fighting for Win to Break Dead-lock Resulting from Two Previous Tied Games—Hard Battle Expected

This Saturday at 2:30 p.m. the McGill English Rugby team will play its final game of the season against its old rival the Westmount team. Already two games have been held between these two clubs and as each one has gained a victory, this Saturday's game should prove extremely exciting as each tries to gain the upper hand.

Practices have been held for the Redmen as frequently as possible but for one thing and another the attendance has not been great. However, McGill turned in an admirable show in its first game of the season, winning 6 to 5 against Westmount, when it had only had one practice, therefore in the coming game great things are expected of the Redmen.

Glancing at the different departments, one finds the "serum" packing well and able to push against the heaviest of teams, and in the three-quarter section a fast running and good passing lot of men. Under the captainship of George Walsh and such players as Tyhurst, Faye and Walkinslaw a good game is expected.

INTRAMURAL

The Inter-Platoon Volleyball League is scheduled to get under way on Wednesday of next week. Teams have been placed in nine sections as follows: (Numbers alone refer to Platoons; "M" stands for Macdonald College; and "I" stands for Independents.)

McGill Harriers In 5 Mile Race

Annual Dunlop Road Race to Be Held Tomorrow Afternoon

Tomorrow afternoon the North Branch of the Y.M.C.A. will be the site of the start and finish of the annual Dunlop Road Race. The gun is scheduled to send the harriers on their way sharp at 3 p.m. However, all runners intending to compete in the grind are asked to be on hand at 2 p.m. as final arrangements will be completed in the dressing room of the Y. Medical examination, registration and tour of the course are yet to be attended to.

The main competition throughout the race is expected to be provided by M. Gale of the R.C.A.F. J. Walberg, former Canadian five mile champion, J. Berman and G. Cowan of McGill, the latter being last year's winner.

MORE MEN EXPECTED

It is hoped that at least four members will represent each company in the McGill Reserve Training Battalion. At present only sixteen runners have signed the entry paper in the locker room of the Gym, but more are expected to turn out as post entries will be accepted.

The race will be run over a five-mile course through the streets of Outremont and the route is as follows: starting at the North Branch Y, the route goes West on St. Viateur for five blocks cutting north to Cote St. Catherine road, west on Cote St. Catherine road to one block this side of Cote des Neiges road, up to Maple Wood and East on Maple Wood, down Bellingham, east on Bellingham to Cote St. Catherine, along Cote St. Catherine to Bloomfield, down Bloomfield to St. Viateur and back to the Y.M.C.A. (Continued on Page Four)
C.A. The approximate time will be twenty-six minutes.

HARRIERS.

All Harrier men report to the North Branch Y.M.C.A., corner Park avenue and St. Viateur at 2 p.m. tomorrow for medical examination and race instructions. New men welcomed. Take Park avenue car north to St. Viateur. All men will dress in Y.M.C.A. and will bring own equipment. Men wishing new shoes report to field house at 5 p.m. today.

Bert Light in Film Debut at Local Theatre

Boxing Coach Plays
Stooge for Jiu
Jitsumen

By D.A.

Those who have knocked off from their studies this week long enough to take in the silver flicker at the Snowdon Theatre may have been surprised to find the McGill boxing coach, Bert Light, and a few other McGillians starring in a Grantland Rice Sport Short, Boxing versus Jiu jitsu is the subject and the latter art is supposedly proved superior.

The pictures were taken two years ago at St. Annes in the old Chevalier Home, which has since burned down. After much practicing the cameras finally focussed on Bert Light taking all the dirt Gordie Perrigarde, Chevalier, and a few other McGill men proficient in jiu jitsu could give him. Bert isn't quite so sure the results would have been the same if they had been playing for keeps. Ted Husings' sugar sweet voice provides the dialogue throughout and the whole thing's quite a fair piece of entertainment.

Another item in the boxing world is the R.C.M.P. Boxing Smoker scheduled for next Friday. The two exhibition bouts will feature McGill men; Harry Jay vs. Pete Shortino and in the heavyweight class George Muttibury vs. Berthume.

die-hard fellow-drips into a game of button-button-whose-got-the-button; and his ace had been black-jacked by trump as the cops came storming in to ferret out all the draft-dodgers and conscription-phobes teeming in droves amongst the audience.

By the time our noble police force was on its way up the front steps, the Owl and his companions were making a beeline for the exit, having heard that sound of sirens repeatedly and oft before. Some of the other members got panicky, and fled the meeting; seeking shelter in the various rooms that honeycomb the Union. One of them, galloping blindly into the offices of the "Daily," accidentally blundered into the Editor's sanctum; and was of course immediately put into the waste-paper basket along with reams of other also-ran articles, and forgotten about. He has not been heard of since. Another got in the costume room of the Red and White Revue chorus, and refused to be moved until it opens again next March.

The Owl and Co., however, didn't get panicky. With intuition born of long experience, they roared through the Union pantry on the way out, each one grabbing a bottle of milk from the refrigerator.

At this moment, a horde of the bluebells of Concordia came sneaking in the back way; so the Owl had to beat a hasty retreat to the basement. The Daily office would have been the propitious place for refuge; but the Owl had severely antagonized the Editor of said rag recently by substituting gin for ginger-ale in a bottle destined for the consumption of the night staff. The Ed. still blushes at the memory of it, but you should have seen the readers! Anyhow, the Player's Club little den of iniquity was open, so in popped the immortal element of McGill with their brave ring-leader. As the cops banged open the door, they found everybody scattered around the room, frozen in the most dramatic poses, and the Owl with a book (the Card Sharp's Manual, '40), held upside down, from which he was busy quoting his old enemy Shakespeare. (The immortal bard probably turned over in his grave so hard they must have thought a delayed action bomb had gone off under the Abbey!)

"A hearse," roared the Owl commandingly. "My kingdom for a hearse! (A lad came scurrying across the floor on his hands and knees. The Owl jumped on.) "To bee," he shouted (desperately wracking his brain—if we may call it that—for material), "or not to put the bee upon? A pox on thy throat, thou bawling dog!" (Jumping off horse-back and assaulting his bewildered companions with a chair leg.) "Take that, Brutus Polonius; and thou, thou swol'n bombard of sack . . ." (turning to the police-chief and poking him in the paunch) . . . "get ye gone!"

The police force cordon retreated hastily. (This episode will be concluded next week.—Ed.)

the very interesting and keenly contested games with the Grads which proved to be so stimulating in the past.

The first hiking trip will get under way this week-end with a group of about twelve co-eds braving the cold north winds to try their hand at home cooking—their own.

Moreover, they plan to do all the hiking they possibly can and see the Laurentians without their blanket of snow.

This initial trip, for it is a new part of the Women's Athletic Program has been organized by Judith Jaffe. Any one who wishes to use the St. Adele Ski house for this purpose is welcome to do so, provided they get in touch with Maryellen Rossiter, President of the M.W.S.A.A. More details which will help with the next trip may be obtained from the co-eds when they return on Tuesday.

Last but not least we have during our wanderings come across a notice in R.V.C. which urges all co-eds interested in playing Ping Pong to sign the list and thus join in on the Annual Ping Pong Tournament.

In past years this tourney has been one of the highlights of the Women's Athletics, as it usually involves some kind of a mixed Tourney later on in the season either with the Union, or Douglas Hall. Co-eds who would like to learn the game should not hesitate to sign up as a knowledge of Ping Pong is not necessary. Besides creating an interest it helps to introduce the co-eds to their classmates.

the engineers. Some enterprising plumbers decided it was high time they took an interest in psychology (or philosophy, they weren't sure which was which). The upshot of it all was that at 3.15 the Engineers, some fifty strong, invaded the Arts Building, and with a whoop and a yell they pushed their way to Room 74. After yielding to the persuasion of Bill Gentleman, they moved to Room 70 where there was more room.

Take Control of Meeting. Protesters that they were interested in Psychology, they urged the executive to continue with the meeting and elect an executive. The executive seemed to doubt the sincerity of the Engineers, and repeatedly urged them to leave, or to nominate a committee to discuss plans. A vote of want of confidence in the executive was swiftly moved, seconded and passed, and at a late hour last night the Supreme Court was still debating the legality of the vote.

While gentle persuasion and psychological arguments failed to move the persistent engineers, the reminder that military training started in ten minutes moved them, and with more whoops and yells they vanished, much to the relief of the Psychological Society. Oh, well, at any rate, it was a good demonstration of Mob Psychology, or perhaps Abnormal Psychology, we're not sure which.

nouncement was made following yesterday's governors' meeting.

Thirteen public bodies in the City, among them McGill University and the University of Montreal, were given authority to select representatives to the City Council under the new administrative set-up of Montreal. McGill yesterday named three members to the nine-member council which will govern the city starting next month. The University of Montreal has announced that a meeting of its administrative society will be held next Tuesday for the purpose of selecting its representatives to the Civic Council.

POINTS FOR COMPANIES.

McGill is entering a number of strong teams representing the various companies of the M.R.T.B., and since the current sports' activities are organized on an Inter-Company basis, the road race has also been adapted to this plan. Every entrant earns two points for his company regardless of where or when he finishes. The four men from each company who finish first will represent the company team and will earn thirty points for their respective companies. The second place team will obtain twenty-five points for its company and so on.

Outside of McGill there will be other teams representing the Royal Canadian Air Force, the Military Training Centre No. 40, and the Victoria Rifles, Battalion I.

This athletic event is also the running of the five mile championship in the Province of Quebec, and the first three men to finish will receive gold, silver and bronze medals according to their respective positions.

that the United States of America up arms against the Axis Power," chose the negative side. Only four of the 24 contestants argued that it would be better for Britain if the U.S. actively entered the war, and of these, only one, Bill Noble, was chosen for the finals. Noble claimed that in the present war Britain is fighting alone against powerful hoards that are threatening the freedom of the whole world, and that it is the duty of the U.S. as well as the British Empire to prevent their victory. On the materialistic side, Noble said that the entrance of the Americans would shorten the war and so reduce the casualties and economic bankruptcy

S. C. M. SECRETARY TO BE HONOURED

Miss Margaret Kinney to Address Meeting After Supper-Party

A supper party in honour of Miss Margaret Kinney, Associate Secretary of the S.C.M. of Canada, will be held on Monday evening in Strathcona Hall at 8 p.m. Miss Kinney, who has just returned from a tour of the Maritime Provinces, will address the gathering after the supper. The evening will end with folk-dancing. Tickets at 25 cents each may be obtained at Strathcona Hall.

Owing to the interest shown by students who heard Mr. Fritz Brantner on his theory and technique for teaching art, a group has decided to spend one evening a week in practising his methods in painting. It has been decided to

EYES-THIS-WAY!

Clothes and gadgets designed to arrest His roving eyes, and make Him concentrate on You!

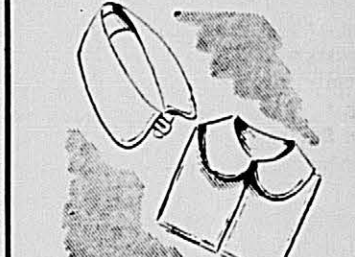

First You Take This . . .

The same old skirt and sweater? NO! The cardigan is a Helen Harper Original that you've seen advertised in Mademoiselle, 2.98

Pullovers to match, sizes 14 to 20, 1.98

The imported skirt is really different — it has a zesty little key ring attached to the saddle-tone belt. In natural and grey. Sizes 14 and 16 only. All wool at 8.95

Eaton's—Sportswear, Third Floor.

Flatter Yourself . . .

A real Eton boy's stiff collar—the most demurely flattering trick seen, only 35c per for 3 for 1.00. Picked right from the Boys' Furnishings, Main Floor.

Why wear a whole blouse under your sweater when all you want is the collar? Just pin one of these dainty dummies under your wool topper, and you can have your collar and your figure too. 1.00 this way, also Little Boy fronts at 1.00, 1.25

Eaton's—Neckwear, Main Floor.

Bows for Beaux . . .

Every girl wears a bow, but you figure out a new way to wear a BIG one, as everybody at Smith, Vassar, all are doing. Ready to wear velvet at 1.00 Or cre rayon satin shines beautifully, plays up the sheen in your own well-brushed locks, and stays perky longer. From 20c a yard, or all made up at 10c and 15c

Eaton's—Accessories, Main Floor.

Good Sports . . .

You, with the dainty ankle! He-man's diamond design socks for you. Ideal with sporty saddle shoes, Soo-Nip-Mocs (also available at EATON'S), or what have you. Sizes 9 to 10 1/2. All wool imported from England for 1.25

Eaton's—Hosiery, Main Floor.

Black Magic . . .

A really exciting necklace! It brings thoughts of voo-doo and savage sorcery. These were hand-made in Cuba by the natives. In wood and seed, so it's sporty enough — with colour, so it's dressy enough. Only a limited supply, and they're going fast. This at 1.25, others at 1.50. Bracelets to match, 75c and 1.00 of Americans today? Is it, "Now that the elections are over, what?" Is it, "What of the war in Europe, and how will the draft affect me?" Is it even, "Where will sex end?" No, it is none of these. The basic issue agitating the minds of Americans today is Coca Cola versus Pepsi Cola.

I have seen two men, each absorbing his own favourite, come nearly to blows at a refreshment stand. One contended that these people have a good thing which they worked on and developed, and along come these other folks with their soft candy-money and copy it. Why, it's like stealing. . . . The other exploded slightly on the third gulp and said it was high time the cola beverages were opened to the good old free competition which made this country what it is today. Monopoly cannot be allowed in this vital industry, and these people proved you can sell twelve ounces for five cents, while the others are trying to foist six on the public.

And farther down on Seventh Avenue, it's "I was talking to a Coca Cola driver the other day and he says this new competition is making them lose money every day. . . ." "Loft is merging with Pepsi Cola, but Loft held eighty per cent. of their stock anyway. . . ." This from a woman who doesn't know stock from feed. And a political insider speculates on the significance of Jim Farley working for "Coke" and whether he will put out as many different brands as he did stamps.

The Humble Juice

But modern merchandising really comes to its peak in packaged foods. Through years of invidious and insidious propaganda, the food manufacturers have blinded the consumer to taste, nourishment and other little things we commonly associate with a good meal. Has it Vitamins A, B, D and X-square? Is it vitalized? Is it nutrasured? Is it shot from (1) guns (2) cannon (3) ninety-nine millimetre howitzers? And above all, is it jelled?

Besides the ordinary orange, grapefruit and pineapple and the up-and-coming apple, the prune, the raisin, the carrot, the string-bean, the onion, and the humble turnip have been subjected to juicing. Hundreds and thousands and millions of cans pass over department store counters daily as housewives institute a campaign of "Drink it! It's clean! It's just chock-full of vitamins! It's slenderizing! It's fattening! It comes to you without contact of human hand!" When the advertising man says grace he is sure to add a word or two . . . from whom all juices flow.

Sea Food, Mama!

Do you like sea food? Here, just a whistle from Herald Square is Patty's Clam Bar. Every fat woman in town is here wrestling with a plateful of oysters, which, we are told, 'R' in season. Every bearded Frenchman for miles around is dribbling seaweed. Noise, crowd, smoke, people, people, dirt, bedlam, lobsters. . . . The waiter asks "What's the dame want?" and drops a spoon into the
